Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Hand-Book of Louisiana: Giving Geographical and Agricultural Features, Together With Crops That Can Be Grown, Description of Each Parish, Climate, Health, Education, Fish and Oysters, Railroads and Watercourses Governor Murphy J. Foster, in his last message to the legislature of this state, used the following forcible language relative to the agricultural interests of Louisiana: Louisiana has nearly 45,000 square miles of territory, containing some 28,000,000 acres. Of this amount about 13,000,000 is of alluvial origin and the rest good upland. The alluvial region is now only cultivated along the banks of rivers, and the rivers protected mostly by public and private levees. The uplands are almost all susceptible of cultivation. The geological position of Louisiana forbids the existence of mineral products, save salt and sulphur, and the general low topography furnishes no water power for the wheels of manufactories. Louisiana must therefore remain for a long time as an agricultural state. Of her 28,000,000 acres, not quite 3,000,000 are in cultivation. From these figures very interesting and instructive deductions might be drawn of the per capita distribution of money resulting from the value of agricultural products alone. All of her uplands can be cultivated under scientific methods, and be made to yield profitable returns. This has been demonstrated by the settlements made on the Illinois Central Railroad, in the piny woods of east Louisiana, and on the Southern Pacific, in the prairies of southwestern Louisiana. A thrifty, industrious and intelligent yeomanry from the northwest has converted these lands into prosperous village farms, profitable to the owners, to the parishes in which they are located, and to the state. After our present levee system has...
