Excerpt: . . . collect. Otherwise every effort was made to minimize the observers influence on normal fishing activities. The primary requirement was that catches from each net be kept separated from all others so the total weight of shrimp from each trawl could be recorded. Captains of the vessels were requested to examine the data collected by the NMFS observer and to sign the data sheets to verify their accuracy. Copies of the completed data sheets were mailed to the vessel captain and owner for their record. Shrimp. If necessary, the back deck of the vessels was partitioned into sections with wooden beams to prevent the catches of the trawls from mixing. A sample of approximately 50 pounds was shovelled from the contents of each trawl into Thus a standard sized plastic shrimp baskets ( 70 lb capacity ). quad-rigged vessel produced four samples per tow and a twin-rigged two samples per tow.
