Not illustrated. 1905 Excerpt: .of the practical mistakes which a professional consultant can and ought to be able to prevent. The adverse criticism which occasionally falls upon electrical driving, in the author's opinion, creates a real demand for experts of this class at the present juncture, when the tendency is so much towards the adoption of electricity as the driving agent. The judicious grouping of motors or application of single motors to special tools, and the relation of their initial capital cost to the general working expenses after their installation, is in many works a complicated problem, upon which it is submitted only one who has made a special study of such applications is competent to advise. It would be unfair to the general industries of the country if, when called upon to make the necessarily great sacrifices in scrapping their original methods of driving, and substituting a more efficient electrical motor, every care were not taken to adopt at once the most economical method in outlay, and the most efficient in practice afterwards. 3.--Position With Respect To The Board Of Trade And The Home Office. The regulations which are being imposed upon electrical users are somewhat confusing and complicated to the uninitiated, and the author thinks it will not be without use if he attempts to put concisely the obligations which users are placed under with respect to their employees by the regulations of the Board of Trade, and more particularly by the regulations issued under Section...
